Counsel and witnesses arrived on a special car on the noon train from Long Island City. The following pere present: Mrs. Hansah M. Corbin, the widow; Austin Corbin, jr., the son, and George S. Edgell, Mr. Corbin's sonin-law, who are the executors. The witnesses to the will are General Manager E. R. Reynolds. of the Long Island Railroad; J. D. Campbell. Charles M. Reynolds, Alfred N. Hehre and William F. Brown, who, with C. M. Reynolds, are also the witnesses of the codicii, William J Kelly, of counsel for the Long Island Railroad, represented the family, and Judge B. A. Reed,

The will was drawn on June 4, 1800. The codiell is dated on April 11, 1893. The executors have absolute power in selling and investing. The homestead at Babylon, a life interest in the house at Fifth-ave. and Thirty-eighth-st., New-York, and $300,000 are given to the widow. The children—Isabella C. Edgell, Austin Cor-bin fr., and Miss Annie Corbin—receive $150,000

André Champollion, a grandson, whose mother Andre Champonion, a grandson, whose mother is dead, receives the mother's share in trust. Judge Reed is guardian. Austin Corbin, jr., also receives an interest in the Corbin Banking Company. Miss Annie Corbin receives $60,000 which is to be used, at her discretion, in building a house.

The remainder of the estate, including stock of the Long Island Railroad and other corporations, is given to the executors in trust during the life of Mrs. Corbin. After her death the estate is to be divided among the children and grandchildren, but the executors will have no power over it.

JOHN STETSON'S LATTER DAYS. HIS PHYSICIAN TESTIFIES IN THE WILL CASE ABOUT HIS MENTAL CONDITION.

ston, July 21.-The John Stetson will case came up in the Probate Court before Judge Grant again to-day. Adah Richmond was not in court, but the two missing witnesses, Dr. W. M. Noyes and Dr. O. G. Cilley, were in attendance. The former was a witness to the will. He testified that he saw Mr. Stetson sign it, and, so far as he was able to judge, Mr. Stetson was in his right mind at the time.

Dr. Cilley, Mr. Stetson's physician, was then He explained his failure to appear in court before by stating that the summons did not contain the proper witness fee, and the person serving it was not a constable. The Court said that under the circumstances it could take no ac The doctor then proceeded with his testimony.

He said that after his first shock in 1894 Mr. Stet-son was not the same man that he was before. EMILY C. WATSON'S ESTATE.

IT IS DIVIDED AMONG MEMBERS OF THE RHINE-LANDER FAMILY, BUT IN CERTAIN CON-TINGENCIES WILL BENEFIT CHARI-TABLE INSTITUTIONS.

By the will of the late Emily C. Watson, which was filed in the office of the Surrogate yesterday, a large estate is left in certain contingencies to many charitable institutions.

An annuity of $1,000 is left to the daughter of the decedent's sister, Laura V. Rhinelander, and one of $1,500 to the testatrix's mother, Nancy M. Rhine-The house at No. 17 East Seventy-secondst is left in trust to the sister, at her death to pass to the nephew of the testatrix, Rhinelander Waldo. Should the latter die without issue, the the property is to be sold, and its value divided qually between the following institutions: Incurables, House of Rest for Consumptives, w-York Eye and Ear Infirmary, Bables Hospital, Luke's Home, Home for Old Men, Sheltering ms, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to idren, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to imals, Children's Aid Society, St. Barnabas suse, Church Mission for Deaf Mutes, American aman's Friend Society and Society of St. John-Seaman's Friend Society and Society of St. Johnland.

All the rest and residue of the estate is left in trust to the decedent's brother. Charles E. Rhinelander, until Rhinelander Waldo reaches the age of thirty years, when the principal is to be paid to Waldo. If Waldo dies before reaching that age and leaving issue, then one-half of the income goes to his children until the death of Charles, when it all passes to Waldo's children. In case of Waldo dying without issue, then the residue is to be divided share and share alike among the above institutions. The will is dated November 14, 1891, and the executors are Charles Rhinelander and John M. Bowers. There is no affidavit as to the value of the estate.

MR VANDERBILT'S CONDITION.

CONTINUED IMPROVEMENT REPORTED-THE REMOVAL TO NEWPORT.

The humidity yesterday did not retard improve ment in the cor and the eighth day of his illness found him so much better that the prospect of his going to The Breakers, his summer home at Newport, in about a week was discussed by members of the family

Mr. Vanderbilt's strength has increased to such degree that he is able now to converse at some length with his wife, who is always at his side, and others in attendance. He spoke yesterday about the change to the sea air at Newport and the complete rest which a sojourn there would afford The plan to move to his summer home was approved by him from the first, and each day the de sire to go grows stronger with him.

The latest announcement coming informally free the physicians last night was that Mr. Vanderbilt passing another comfortable night, resting easily and improving steadily. As was announced the day before, the physicians have decided to issue no more bulletins at present. There will be none from this time on so long as the patient continues to improve. The medical reports regarding Mr Vanderbilt's condition were confined to informa statements yesterday. Dr. McLane said: "Mr Vanderbilt's condition is entirely satisfactory, and there is no occasion for any formal announcement. He enjoyed a hearty breakfast this morning. He slept soundly last night and was greatly re

This last statement disposes of a wild rum which emanated from an irresponsible source early yesterday morning, alleging that Mr. Vanderbi had experienced a relapse. This tale was abso lutely without any foundation. The patient passed an excellent night, those in attendance declared and there was no sign of a relapse.

With the announcement of Mr. Vanderbilt's steady improvement the callers became fewer in number yesterday. Harold Payne Whitney called and W. K. Vanderbilt had a talk with his brother The rain early vesterday morning soaked the tanbark in Fifth-ave, and the Plaza, transforming it in some places into a mire nearly a foot deep A vegetable wagon from Harlem was stalled while passing the Vanderbilt house. The wagon resisted the efforts of haif a dozen men and the team After a delay of three-quarters of an hour two milk wagons approached. drawing these were hitched to the produce wagon and, after considerable disturbance, including voci ferous "Git ups." the load of green corn and nev potatoes was moved down the avenue.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon a member of the family said that Mr. Vanderbilt had improved steadily all day. The clot in the blood vessel on the brain which caused the paralysis is believe to have been absorbed, and it is thought that all danger has passed.

The telegraph and mail continued to convey mes sages of inquiry yesterday from anxious friends. The large batches of letters delivered at the house also included more communications from strangers, some offering apparently well-meant advice con cerning the treatment of the patient, and other making suggestions regarding the prevention of the

The change to The Breakers, it was said by sooner than was at first expected, owing to the ex cellent improvement in Mr. Vanderbilt's condition Dr. McLane, who will accompany Mr. Vanderbilt to Newport, said last night that, at the present rate of improvement, there was a prospect of an early of improvement, there was a prospect of an early departure for the summer home. The physician added, however, that there must be a much greater improvement before he would sanction the removal and that Mr. Vanderbilt must have considerable strength to endure the fatigue of the journey to Newport, although this, it was intended, would be made as quickly as possible by special time in Mr. Vanderbilt's private car.

Among the further arrangements considered last night for the transportation of the patient to his summer home was a suggestion that the trip be made by water, possibly on Frederick W. Vanderbilt's yacht. The journey by rail, however, it was decided, would be much more desirable on account of the greater speed.

A SLIGHT FIRE IN BUCKINGHAM PALACE.

THE WEDDING OF PRINCESS MAUD TO-DAY.

London, July 21.-The Queen arrived at Buckingham Palace to-day from Windsor for the purpose of attending the marriage of Prince Charles of of Wales, to-morrow. On her way to the palace from the railway station the Queen called at Marlbrough House, the London residence of the Prince of Wales.

While the Queen was at dinner this evening in Buckingham Palace a fire occurred in one of the apartments. An alarm was sent out and a number of fire engines were specifly at the scene. The fire was confined to the apartment in which it originated, and the damage was slight.

MR. OLNEY CALLS ON THE PRESIDENT.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 21.-Secretary of State Olney, who arrived at Palmouth last night, came up from his summer home this morning and paid his respects to the President. Mr. Olney's call was a short one, and he returned to Falmouth on the first train. The call was purely social. Mr. Oiney had not seen the President since he came to Gray Gables. It is said that the visit had nothing what ever to do with either the Cuban or the Venezuelas ever to do with either the Chan of the velezation of the Correspondence. After Mr. Oliney departed the President went squeteague fishing with Joseph Jefferson. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamilin has arrived at Marion for the season. The report that the President has summoned members of his Cabinet and other party leaders to Gray Gables for a conference is not credited.

SECRETARY CARLISLE RETURNS HOME. Washington, July 21 .- Secretary Carlisle and fam-

NOTES OF THE STAGE.

The 100th performance of "El Capitan" was given by De Wolf Hopper and his company at the Broad-way Theatre last night. The souvenirs were sil-ver-mounted white kid pocketbooks.

F. F. Proctor continues to make additions to the Pleasure Palace. The new entrance from Third-ave, will be opened on Saturday. It forms an arcade, lined with booths, and will be a public thoroughfare.

D. H. Harkins, for nine years a member of Rich ard Mansfield's company, has been engaged to appear in "Rosemary." the play in which John Drew will open his season at the Empire Theatre on

THE POPULIST CONVENTION.

NOW FOR A STRAIGHTOUT FIGHT

From The Philadelphia Press.

Bryan and Sewall are the logical candidates of the Populist party, and they ought to be nominated by its Convention at St. Louis.

This is as it should be. It is best for all concerned on both sides to fight this issue out to a finish. No "middle of the road" is left. No dubious course is possible. No man can keep out of the great fight now on. One side or the other he must be on, and if he stays out he is on the wrong side. From The Philadelphia Press.

THE SOUTHERN POPULISTS.

From The Chicago Times-Herald.

The Populists in the South have made substantial headway and have won many elections. It is natural that they should resist the invitation to lose their identity and merge themselves into the new Popocratic organization. To yield to the blandishments of the sliver mine-owners and indorse the Popocrat ticket under promises of a division of the spoils would be a proclamation to the world that the Populist party was organized not upon any definite principle, but merely to get offices. From The Chicago Times-Herald.

A BITTER DOSE.

From The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette. Sewall must be added to the dose. The indications on the eve of the Convention are that if he is thus added he will be well shaken before taken. Altogether the ditlook is bright for a merry time at the National Pop gathering.

PROSPECTS OF DEMORALIZATION.

From The Syracuse Post. If the Populists nominate an independent ticket and refuse to indorse the Chicago ticket the free-silver forces will be badly divided and demoralized.

THE WRECK OF POPULISM.

If Bryan is not indorsed in the Convention most of the Populists will vote for him. If he is indorsed there is pretty certain to be a holt. In any event, the Populists are doomed to suffer as a distinct party organization. Either they will be merged in the National Democracy or they will be rent asunder by internal dissensions. From The Buffalo Express.

GRASPING AT THE SILVER SHADOW.

From The Boston Advertiser. The truth seems to be that Southern Populists are appalled by the danger which confronts them of incurring the fate of the poor dog in the fate that dropped the bone out of his mouth in order to grasp the shadow reflected from the brook.

THE OLD PATRIOT'S FARM BECOMES STATE PROPERTY-A MONUMENT UNVEILED

AND A FLAG PRESENTED. Lake Placid, N. Y., July 21 (Special).-Three miles from this attractive summer resort, on a wind-swept hilltop, whose horizon is a colossal circle of mountains, is John Brown's grave, and at that hisoric spot were had to-day exercises of National in-The occasion was one threefold of objectthe raising of a United States flag, presented by State Excise Commissioner Lyman, the unveiling of a monument erected by the John Brown Association and the formal acceptance by the State of the the Commonwealth by that association. The exercises had many striking features.

A week ago Monday a perty, consisting of the five members of the State Fisheries, Game and Forest Commission, Messrs. Davis, Holden, Thompson Weed and Babcock; five members of the Assembly Special Committee on the Adirondacks, Messrs. Wagstaff, Allds, Armstrong, Eldridge and Fitz gerald; Colonel William F. Fox, superintendent of the State Forest; A. N. Cheney, State Fish Cul turist; Major J. W. Pond, Chief Game Protector, General E. A. Merritt, of Potsdam; Colonel Ashley W. Cole, Governor Morton's private secretary, as several other men, left Albany on a tour of inspec tion of the Adirondacks, starting in at the Fulton Chain. That day they traversed the wonderfu system of mountains, lakes and rivers for 120 miles, the water journey ending with Lower Saranac Stevens House here at Lake Placid, with the object of taking part in the exercises to-day at North Elba. They were joined here by Colonel Lyman. The day was fair and cool, and although the meeting had not been widely advertised nearly 500 persons assembled this afternoon at the John Brown The main starting point was the Stevens House, whence two tally-hos and many carriages conveyed the people. The other hotels of the region were also well represented. Bicycles were there, too, and a swarm of kodak carriers just outside the picket fence inclosure in which ite the bodies of old John Brown and his son Watson, killed at Harper's Ferry.

The big new sixty-three-foot flagpole was lying. and fifty men, seizing the ropes, pulled it up into position. Then the flag presented by Colonel Lyman was broken out, the cord being pulled by Leander and Frank Thompson, aged men, two of whose brothers met their death at Harper's Ferry, and Mrs. Armstrong, of Chicago, a near friend o the late Kate Field. As the flag was unfurled the assemblage, led by Commissioner Thompson, gave three cheers monument was to be unveiled. A little to the south of the burial inclosure, which stands on a large bowlder, is the monument, an obiong granite shaft, roughly hewn except for one polished face, on which is an inscription, setting forth the fact that John Brown's farm was donated to the people of the State of New-York in 1886 by the twenty persons whose names are given—the members of the John Brown Association, several of whom are no longer living. After a few remarks by General Merritt, as presiding officer of the day, the two Thompson brothers removed the American flag which had draped the stone, while all present joined in the singing of "America."

The further exercises were had at the little weather-beaten house close by, which was the old hero's home for the last ten years of his life. A reading desk had been rigged up on the plazza extension, and there the speakers of the day were assembled. The prayer was delivered by the Rev George Bringhurst, of Philadelphia, who was the first delegate of the United States Christian Commission. General Merritt, white haired, but still vigorous, made a brief address as chairman, and then introduced Colonel Ashley W. Cole, who, representing the Governor, in a graceful speech accepted for the State the sift of the John Brown farm. Then Colonel Lyman was introduced to deliver the oration of the day, in which he ably and eloquently sketched the stormy and eventful career of John Brown, his forceful personality and his relations to the anti-slavery cause. The gathering, led by the choir, which consisted of Messrs. Chency, Holden, Allds, Weed, Pond and Armstrong, then sang "John Brown, Body."

General Merritt announced after this the singing of a favorite hymn of John Brown's, by reguest.

ing, led by the chart, which consisted to account the sang "John Brown's Body."

General Merritt announced after this the singing of a favorite hymn of John Brown's, by request. It was "The Year of Jubilee Hymn," beginning "Blow Ye the Trumpet, Blow," and was sung by an aged colored man, who was one of the slaves brought here by the "underground railroad" before the war, and his son and daughter. It was listened to with much interest. Father Lynch, of Danbury, Conn., pronounced the benediction, and then six Grand Army veterans, neighbors of John Brown, fired three volleys across his grave. And so the rugged old patriot had the honors of a military funeral paid him nearly twoscore years after his tragic death.

SUDDEN DEATH AT A CHOP HOUSE.

PETER KENNY, AN INSURANCE AGENT, EXPIRES AFTER BEING SEIZED WITH A HEMORRHAGE.

Peter Kenny, sixty-five years old, who lives in Ridgefield Park, N. J., died suddenly shortly after noon yesterday, at No. 5 Thames-st., which is better known as Old Tom's Chop House. Mr. Kenny, who was the general agent of the New-England its New-York offices at No. 206 Broadway, had been in the habit of taking his dinner daily for the las forty years at Old Tom's Chop House. He came in as usual yesterday at noon. He had scarcely

The restaurant was filled with customers at the time and there was considerable excitement. help of some of the other guests, Mr. Kenny was help of some of the other guests, Mr. Kenny was taken upstairs and laid on a lounge. Dr. Page, of No. 117 Cedar-st., was summoned, but before he arrived. Mr. Kenny had breathed his last.

A message informing Mrs. Kenny of the death of her husband was sent to Ridgefleid, N. J., where she and the two children of the dead man live. Mr. Kenny was well known in downtown circles. He was commodore of the Hoboken Yacht Club, when it was in existence, and was a member of the Hoboken Turtle Club, the Turtle Club, the Neptune Club, the Cauliflower Club and several other social organizations. It was said that Mr. Kenny had been in ill health for the last two years.

Kenny had been in in health for the last two years.

Mrs. Kenny and her two daughters, one of whom is married and the other single, arrived at the the chop house about *p. m. and had the body removed to Mooney's undertaking shop, in Greenwich-st., near Rector-st. This morning the body will be taken to the home of Mrs. Kenny's father, Jacob W. Bingham, No. 8 East One-hundred-and-twenty-ninth-st., where the funeral will be held. The burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

IN A CELL WITHOUT FOOD.

THE PRISONER FAINTS IN COURT THE NEXT MORNING, AND IS REVIVED WITH

Policeman Tighe, of the West Thirtieth-st. sta tion, on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock found a vagrant asleep on the stoop of the house at No. 56 West Thirty-third-st. Tighe tried to awaken the man, but was only able to do so after using herote methods. At the station the prisoner gave his name as William Metzel, twenty-five years old, of no He was unable to talk English, and was locked up on a charge of vagrancy.

When Metzel was arraigned in Jefferson Market
Court yesterday morning he was recognized by Mr. Jerome, an agent of the Charities Organization Society, as having been committed by him to the Workhouse some time ago. Metzel, while waiting in the line to be arraigned, fell in a heap on the floor. He was hurriedly lifted to his feet by the policemen in the court and revived. He told the interpreter, Dr. Weil, that he had not tasted a mouthful of food for more than a week. He said he tried to make them understand that he was starving when he was locked up in the station.

Owing to his feeble condition Metzel was hur-

Owing to his feeble condition Metzel was hurriedly brought to the bar. The case that was pending was stopped long enough to allow Tighe to explain to Magistrate Flammer the nature of the case. Magistrate Flammer committed Metzel to the Workhouse as a vagrant.

In the short space of time that this took Metzel had been standing up against a railling clutching the top of the rai. As soon as the case was disposed of he again fainted and fell over on the floor in front of the Magistrate. He was picked up and carried to the prison, where he revived long enough to tell his name and give his pedigree, and then he fainted again. He was taken into the prison and locked in a cell, and some soup was brought to him by Keeper McDermott. He was not able to cat at the time, and it was thought that he could not live.

Later the prison officials gave Metzel some port wine, and then, when his system was warmed through, again offered him some weak broth. Metzel took this, and an hour later was able to cat a large bowl of soup ravenously. He then said that he felt better than he had felt for some time. Magistrate Flammer took great interest in the man. He will be sent to Bellevue Hospital.

Mr. Jerome severely criticised the police of the West Thirtieth-st, station for having allowed a man in Metzel's condition to spend an entire night in the cell without giving him something to cat. He said that even if Metzel was not able to speak English, the police ought to have been able to comprehend the condition of the starving man.

FOUND DEAD IN THE PARK.

The attention of Park Policeman Kelly was called o a man sitting on a bench on the West Drive of Central Park, opposite Seventy-fourth-st., at 9:30 o'clock last night. He attempted to arouse the man, but failed and sent for an ambulance from Roose-

A DAY AT JOHN BROWN'S GRAVE. velt Hospital. On its arrival the doctor pronounced the man dead. The man was about forty-five years old, was five feet ten inches in height, was dressed in plain black clothes, a black hat and had three rolled gold collar buttons in his shirt front. In one of his pockets was found a handkerchief with the of his pockets was found a handkerchief with the letter "E" worked in the corner. The body was removed to the Arsenal and the Coroner informed. About midnight Clarence White, of No. 1,965 Madison-ave., went to the Arsenal and told Sergeant Mulholland that while he was riding by on a bleycle he saw the man sitting on a bench apparently sick. He started to buy some whiskey for the man, and on the way met Policeman Kelly and told him of the occurrence. The sick man's breath smelled strongly of carbolic acid, but there was no evidence of a bottle containing it.

CHAT ABOUT PROMINENT MEN.

William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, whose sudden death last week shocked the country, was a man of marked ability, an untiring worker, and, withal, a keen humorist. A good story is told of his trip to Chicago, where he went as one of Mr. Whitney's little band of patriots to battle for the gold standard. Going out on the same train, a politician of mature years waxed enthusiastic over Mr. Russell. He said, admiringly: "Governor, you are a young man, and the office of President is a great office. We ought to have a man in it who is experienced, as well as able, but I think that you the whole, the young men are coming to the front. We ought to nominate a young man. Yes, sir, I am for a young man." On the return home the ex-Governor passed through the car in which this particular statesman was seated, and found him doubled up in a berth and swearing until he was nearly black in the face. His words were directed at the Democratic nominee for President. Mr. Russell stopped and said in a surprised way: "Why, what is the matter?" "Matter" answered the other. "Matter? There is matter enough. That blank, blankety cut-throat anarchist cannot get a dozen votes in New-York, and we have got to carry him with the organization. Pretty showing he will make! Blank ——" Mr. Russell let him have his say for a moment, and then said, laughing: "Well, I don't see what you are mad about. You got what you wanted." The other gazed at him in astonishment. "Got what I wanted?" he said, incredulously. "Got what I wanted? I want that ——' then he paused for want of breath. "Yes," said Mr. Russell, serenely, "you declared yourself for a young man on the way out, and Bryan is the youngest man that was offered. You ought to be satisfied." The other giared, and replied: "Well, I didn't want him so blamed young that he didn't know enough to be honest." ex-Governor passed through the car in which this all well in the Chicago Convention, and those who were expecting that he would make a strong showing in the fight for the nomination, were somewhat disappointed. His connection with the Adminisration is said to be one of the things that killed him in the Convention, but now that the Convenon is over, there is a suspicion that he is a friend of free silver and will support the ticket in politics, but some years ago he was an active campaigner, and it is boped by his friends that he will again enter the field. A story is told by Mr. Stevenson of the campaign of 1872 in which he was an active participant. He was in that year a fellow-townsman of the late David Davis, who was nominated for the Presidency by the Labor Reform party at Columbus in that year. That was the year of the war cry. "Anything to beat Grant," and Mr. Stevenson, in the Illinois Democratic State Convention, made a strong speech urging that Davis be taken up and indorsed. After the speech a decrepit old wheel horse of the party, who came from away down in the interior of the State, hobbled over to Mr. Stevenson and said in a stage whisper: "That speech of yourn was all right, Adly, but don't you think it's too soon to bring old Jeff out again? I tell you, the feelin' ain't dead yet." in politics, but some years ago he was an activ

falo, was at the Hoffman House the other day. Mr. Rissell, to use a phrase from the Bowery, "jined Convention from declaring for free coinage. He stood the revolutionary proceedings up to the time that Senator Tiliman succeeded in getting the plat-form and making a virulent attack upon President Cleveland. That was too much for Mr. Bissell and when he saw that the statements made by Senator Tillman about the President, his personal friend, were to be indorsed by the Convention, he packed his grip and came home. He was diskusted then, and he was still disgusted when he was seen in New-York. He would not talk for publication, but he plainly indicated to his friends that he would not support the Chicago ticket. It is thought that he is waiting for President Cleveland to declare himself, and that he will then make known his ideas. There was grim humor in his answer to an inquiry, made by a friend, as to the situation. He said, "I am out of politics—and it is a good place for Democrats to be."

Another Democrat who is disgusted with the rev olutionary proceedings in Chicago is ex-Governor James E. Campbell, of Ohio. Mr. Campbell, before he saw the way his party was drifting to Anarchy and revolution, was looked upon as a candidate for the nomination. When Tillman, Altgeld and their fellows manufactured a platform, Mr. Campbel saw that no honest man could stand upon it, and he quietly withdrew from active interest in the fight. A few weeks previous to the Convention, when in New-York, he urged the adoption of a middle course, and also declared himself as favoring the largest New York, he lirged the alloption of a mane consequence and also declared himself as favoring the largest possible use of silver. Friendly as he was to the white metal, his course was not radical enough for the Convention. John R. McLean came to the front from Ohio, and Mr. Campbell dropped back. The latter was in this city yesterday, looking after his business affairs. It was impossible to get him to talk about the Chicago Convention, but disgust was manifest in his face whenever that Convention was mentioned. He simply declared that he was out of politics, and had nothing whatever to say. He intimated that he would take no part in the coming contest, perhaps not even voting.

"The brand of Cain will be upon the brow of any man that does not vote for free sliver this year. This is the latest "argument" in favor of adopting a debased currency system. It was made Monday by Captain W. B. Burnett, of Georgia, Captain Burnett, with H. T. Lewis and W. M. Howard, is on his way home to Georgia. The three tourists were delegates to the Chicago Convention from Georgia and are highly delighted with the result of that gathering. It would be hard to find three men together who are so enthusiastic over the white meta as these Democrats are. They declare that the as these Democrats are. They declare that the West is wild for free silver, and as for Georgia-well, Georgia at a white heat. Since the Convention they have been travelling about the country, and they look upon Bryan's election as assured. "Will Georgia certainly go for free silver" Captain Burnett was asked. The answer was impressive. "Only the hand of the Archangel can turn it aside from that path." came solemnly from his lips. "The cause is marching on." he added, "and when the votes are counted this fall, Bryan will have more than all the rest put together."

Ex-Mayor John S. Roche, of Chicago, does no believe what Captain Burnett is preaching Mr. Roche declares emphatically that Illinois will stand by the Republican ticket this fail, and vote for honest money. He is sure that Governor Altgeld will be defeated, and that the whole coterie that ran the Chicago Convention will be rebuked. "In the West," said Mr. Roche, after an explanatory re-mark to some friends that he was out of politics entirely, "the question is not, who is a Democrat, or who is a Republican, but who is an honest man. It who is a Republican, but who is an honest man. It is a quention of saving the country's honor, and if the conditions were reversed to-day the Republicans would join the Democrats in standing up for the country's honor. Party lines are fast being eliminated, and I am happy to say that simost every business man that I have met, who is a Democrat, has signified his intention of upholding the country's honor and the preserving of the Nation's credit by the maintenance of the gold standard. The free-coinase men cannot carry Illinois, and their assertions that they can are not builded upon facts. In my opinion they cannot carry any of the Middle Western States that are logically Republican. The people will not be deceived by the sophistries of the free-silver advocates."

NO BLANK CARTRIDGES.

GENERAL SICKLES DECLARES HE WILL GIVE A PATRIOTIC VOTE FOR M'KINLEY.

Major McKinley very well. He is a man of rectifude and honor, the day he stands for earling so the kindley as a rectifude and proper that surviving veterans should go to the front, as in former days, disregarding mere partisan thoughts, and throw their weight, as they did from 61 to 65, for the honor and good name of our country, now menaced by revolutionary combinations of a very dangerous character.

It is fortunate that one of the great political parties has named a candidate for the Presidency whose admirable military record every soldier looks upon with admiration and pride, and for whom he may cast his vote without hesitation, assured that in doing so he is promoting the best interests of the Republic.

I know Major McKinley very well. He is a man of rectifude and honor. Upon the practical and pressing issues of the day he stands for all that Americans must uphold. While I do not agree with some of his political views, I am far more widely separated from the ruinous platform of his adversaries. As President, chosen as he will be by the votes of men of all parties, his election will not be a partisan triumph. His Administration will guarantee public credit and public decorum and order, now threatened by a compiracy of Anarchists, Populists and Socialists.

You and I and our comrades are not accustomed to use blank cartridges in presence of an enemy; therefore I don't propose to throw away my voton archists, Populists and Socialists.

You and I and our comrades are not accustomed to use blank cartridges in presence of an enemy; therefore I don't propose to throw away my voton on any third candidate. Nor are we in the habit of withholding our fire when assailed; therefore, I don't mean to stay home and not vote at all. I shall give a patriotic vote for my comrade, Major McKinley, believing that in so doing I am repeating what I did in '64, when, as a war Democrat, I voted for Lincoln and the Union.
